CATALOGUE OF A VALUABLE COLLECTION
OF CANADIAN BOOKS...¹

(Williamson & Company, Cable Address "Wacousta" Toronto, 1898.)

Nineteenth century sale catalogues of Canadian books provide an interesting, often colourful, insight into an important part of our cultural past. As with today's second-hand catalogues, some were carefully prepared, well documented, their items expertly described, while others were not as reliable. One thing is clear: prices for printed material of Canadian content have changed, as the facsimile copy of the Williamson catalogue so dramatically reveals. It is interesting to note, however, that the average bookseller at the turn of the century was fully capable of producing a substantial and representative list, in this case over six hundred items, in a pleasing format, with informative notes and excerpts from reviews about the various titles for sale.

This particular catalogue, one of a series issued by Williamson & Company, is typical of the kind of material that must be considered in any serious and detailed study of book collecting as well as book selling in Canada. Its bibliographical worth is obvious and fortunately the importance of preserving such catalogues is now widely recognized by private collectors and libraries.

Everyone who reads this facsimile will recognize special items of interest. One may be pardoned for mentioning just one. On page thirty-three there is listed, for example, a complete set of the literary journal The Week (1883-1896), already described as "Extremely Scarce" just two years after its demise. The asking price of $65.00 for all thirteen volumes will no doubt make many book collectors wish, with not inconsiderable longing, that it were possible to turn back the clock.

The Williamson sale catalogue tells its own story well enough.

A brief note about the publishers, Williamson & Company, may be of interest. The firm of Willing and Williamson, Booksellers and Stationers, first appears in the Toronto City Directory of 1872-73. Both Robert B. Willing and William Williamson had some previous experience in the Toronto book business before forming their partnership. In 1869 Willing was a clerk with the well-established publishing house of Adam, Stevenson & Co. Williamson gained business experience as a book-keeper at Gooderham & Worts, Distillers, during the years 1869 and 1870 before joining Adam, Stevenson & Co. in 1871 as a traveller. Willing and Williamson joined forces two years later and remained as partners until about 1885. Willing continued in the book trade as manager of a subscription books agency when the Williamson Company was formed under the management of Thomas G. Williamson.

The new company took an active part in the Toronto book-selling business, as its catalogues of the 1890's reveal. In 1898, the year the present catalogue was issued, the Toronto City Directory lists the shop address at 288 Yonge Street. Like many businesses in the book trade, Williamson & Company seemed to be constantly changing its address.

The firm gradually turned to trade journal publishing and as late as 1910 Williamson & Company was issuing from its number 15 Toronto Street location such publications as the Canadian Druggist, a monthly, and amongst others, a quarterly magazine with the intriguing, some might say impossible, title of Ideal Men. The latter at twenty-five cents the copy.

To Book Collectors

AND OTHERS

THE within mentioned books, which are now offered for sale, are mainly from a collection made during the last thirty or more years by one thoroughly conversant with early Canadian history. The list comprises many of great importance and rarity. In pamphlets also the reader will find many such as are rarely now on the market. The extra illustrated books form a new feature in Canadian cataloguing, but it will be found, on examination, that Canada and its history lends itself admirably to the artistic taste displayed in these splendid volumes. We hope to follow this catalogue with one of "Americana," etc., and meanwhile we would ask friends into whose hand it may fall, but who are not interested, to pass it on to some book lover.

Librarians and others will find it to their interests to send us, from time to time, lists of books wanted, as we have peculiar facilities for the collection of rare works.

Letters of inquiry have prompt and careful attention.

Terms cash. The prices are net and do not include express or postal charges, except where arrangements may be made. Books mailable throughout Canada at four cents per pound; to the United States and Europe, eight cents. Four pounds is weight limit. Any book published over 20 years is duty free in the United States. Money is safest if remitted by Post Office Order or Bankers' Draft, or if more convenient, by Registered letter or Express Money Order.

A Journal of Transactions and Events, during a residence of nearly sixteen years on the coast of Labrador; containing many interesting particulars, both of the country and its inhabitants, not hitherto known. A VERY RARE AND INTERESTING WORK. With maps, and in vol. 1, as a frontispiece, is a copper plate portrait of the author visiting his fox traps, and on a page preceding the text of the journal is the following explanation of the frontispiece. "The frontispiece represents a winter scene on the sea coast of Labrador, with the author* taking his usual walk round his fox-traps. He is supposed to have got sight of some deer, and has put his dog's hood on to keep him quiet. His hat (which is white) north-wester, wrappers, cuffs, breeches and buskins are English, his jacket, which is made of Indian dressed deer-skin and painted, sash and rackets are mountaineer, and his shoes Esquimaux. The pin-overs of his north-wester are loose, and hang down on the right side of it. On his back is a trap, fixed by a pair of slings, in the manner of a soldier's knapsack. A bandoleer hangs across his breast from his right shoulder, to which are fastened a black fox and his hatchet. A German rifle is on his left shoulder. In the background is a yellow fox in a trap, beyond him, there is a white bear crossing the ice of a narrow harbor, and at the mouth of the harbor the view is terminated by a peep at the sea, which is frozen over. The tops of a few small rocks appear, and the rocky summits of the distant hills are bare, but all the rest of the ground is covered with snow." The author was a half-pay officer, and his reason for going to Labrador may be gathered from the following extract from page vi. of preface. "I soon found that two shillings and four pence a day was too small an income to enable me to live in a Baronet's country seat, and to keep a female companion, two servants, a couple of horses and three brace of dogs." In one volume, a book plate of Wyrley Birch. 3 vols. 4to large paper. Beautifully printed at Newark, England, 1792. $35.00.
- This journal is written with care and fidelity, the style of the author is plain and manly: he delivers his sentiments with freedom, and with confidence asserts only those circumstances, which, with his own observation, he knew to be facts.—Rich.

- 561a The Six Nations Indians —The People of the Longhouse. An exceedingly interesting and valuable addition to our knowledge of Indian history, life and customs generally, including much that now appears in print for the first time, by Edward Marion Chadwick, Esq., barrister-at-law honorary chief (Shagotiyohgwisaks). One handsome 8vo volume, 166 pp., with illustrations, emblematic cloth cover of unique design, gilt top, in a box. $2.00.

The frontispiece is a striking group of chiefs and warriors who visited Toronto in 1897. Major Chadwick's other and very important work on Canadian Genealogy and Heraldry (see No. 567a) is one of particular value to those interested in our early history and in the United Empire Loyalists.

- 562a "Railways and Other Ways," being the valuable and extremely interesting Reminiscences of Sixty-five years of Railway Life by Mr. Myles Pennington, first general freight agent of the Grand Trunk Railway of Canada. A handsome small quarto volume, illustrated with views and portraits of the past and present Presidents and General Managers, (Sir Chas. Rivers-Wilson and Mr. C. M. Hays) and other chief officers. Cloth, emblematically stamped. $2.50.

This is something more than a railway book. It is really a history of industrial progress in Canada, and a companion book to Smiles' "Self-Help." Every library should place this within reach of their readers, as it gives biographical sketches of many of the leading men of the present century, beginning with George Stephenson and ending with the well-known men of the present day, including English, American and Canadian names.

- 570a The Hittites. Their Inscriptions and History, by Professor John Campbell, M.A., LL.D., Montreal. 2 vols. Demy 8vo, cloth extra, fully illustrated $5.00.

"Prof. Campbell has a well-earned reputation, especially among archaeologists and students of ancient and modern history as a scholar of no mean attainments. One leading critic in England says 'He possesses a wonderful, if not unique knowledge of very early ethnology, especially Egyptology.' The larger part of the book contains a history of the Hittites from a period of time some three generations prior to the patriarch Abraham. The materials for this history are furnished by the Egyptian and Assyrian monuments, by the Greek historians and by almost universal tradition, arising from the fact that the Hittites were, in many respects, the greatest of ancient peoples, and constituted the substratum of all early civilization. The course of his argument leads the author to study and discussion of the records of the Hittites in Egypt, on the Tigris and Euphrates, in Palestine and neighboring countries, in their contrast with the Assyrian Empire, in their struggle with the Aryan race, which ended in the supremacy of the latter, and in their dispersal westward, and the interesting story of the peopling of the American continent."—Toronto Globe

- 571a Ontarian Families. The Genealogy of United Empire Loyalists and other Pioneer Families of Upper Canada, with Heraldic Illustrations. By Edward Marion Chadwick, Esq., Barrister-at-Law. The drawings (some in colors) are all in the author's well-known, admirable style. Printed on fine plate paper 4to, half bound. Vol. I. $12. Vol. II. $6.

This is a successful gathering together of the records of the famous families of U.E. Loyalists and others who cast in their lot with the Crown. The author (whose reputation in this department of knowledge is more than provincial) has traced many of the families to their ancestral homes in early England and France, and, as branches of many of them are scattered now over the United States, this book should have a wide interest. The heraldic illustrations, after Mr Chadwick's own drawing, are much admired for their beauty, and the color printing is quite up to the best continental work. A list of families will be sent on application to us.

This is one of the most notable contributions to the historical literature of Canada made in many years. Nowhere will be found more graphic pictures of the social life in Ontario in the early part of this century than these pages present. The work is monumental as a record of the times, and is a worthy tribute to the men and the women who helped to make Ontario what it is today.

- 585a Sir John A. Macdonald. An anecdotal life of the late Premier of Canada, by E. A. Biggar. Royal 8vo, 332 pages, cloth $2.50.
- "Mr Biggar's idea was a happy thought, and it is well carried out. The author has taken great pains to bring together the jokes and examples of airy persiflage that could be found as Sir John's. It is history, biography, and story book all in one, and presents the great Canadian statesman and many of his contemporaries in a new and interesting light. —J. W. Bragdon in Grip.

- "Mr Yeigh's study is far more than an architectural sketch. It throws light upon many sides of the development of the Province of Ontario, and might well serve as an outline history of her political life, though in no sense an elaborate work. Ontario has reason to be proud of the new structure in which her present parliamentary sessions are held, and Mr Yeigh has furnished many illustrations of the building and of its humbler predecessors, together with portraits of some of the leading men who have figured in the provincial public life. —Review of Reviews

N.B.—The London Bookseller has the following note on Kingsford's History of Canada (just ready), adscriptive circular of which will be sent on application.

"We have here a work which promises, when completed, to be the most important and extensive history of Canada as yet given to the world. The Federation of the North American Colonies in the existing Dominion, renders it possible now to make a complete historical survey of the territory, which, perhaps, could not have been so conveniently achieved before. Mr Kingsford writes pleasantly and well, and the book is a notable addition to colonial history."

Williamson & Co. can supply this important work (10 vols, cloth), and also any book published in Canada or elsewhere. Correspondence solicited.
