The Lotz format has been retained, with the addition of annotations, while the subject arrangement has been somewhat modified. The present update was typed on an MTST machine. Future updates will be produced by computer. The computer programme has been completed, and pilot print-outs have been produced.

The ugly gap between the first and second lines of the title entries, and the lack of italics or brackets for serial titles in analytical entries, are defects in the present volume. These and other imperfections in the format will be corrected in the computer programme. The index structure will also be improved. The present binding, chosen on costing grounds, has proved flimsy and unsatisfactory.

The bibliography is intended to serve the needs of Yukon residents and researchers for comprehensive coverage of recently-published materials on the Territory. With the projected computerized update, it is proposed to issue triennial supplements while interim print-outs could be made available through the Library of the Boreal Institute.

Directory of Interlibrary Loan Policies and Photocopying Services in Canadian Libraries, compiled by the Committee on the Directory of Interlibrary Loan Policies and Photocopying Services in Canadian Libraries, Information Services Section, Canadian Library Association. Ottawa: Canadian Library Association, 1973. v, 88p. $10.00

The concept of a directory of interlibrary loan and photocopying policies in Canadian libraries is a good one, and hopefully this manual will be useful in expediting loan procedures.

The arrangement is excellent, with the National Libraries listed first, then others arranged alphabetically within their provinces. The list of library mailing addresses is useful, as are the few blank pages at the end of the directory left for entries of additional libraries.

The questions asked by the committee are wide-ranging and comprehensive, covering all important aspects of loan regulations: types of materials loaned and not loaned, loan periods, charges for photocopying, and type of billing. The format is clear, making the tables easy and quick to use. A wide range of libraries is covered by the 318 entered; this perhaps will take the burden off larger libraries, as suggested in the introduction by Miss Maude Godfrey.

Miss Godfrey mentions also the necessity for such a guide to be absolutely up-to-date, and this is where my major question as to its validity arises. The questionnaire from Queen's was returned to the Committee in August, 1972; the directory was received in November, 1973. With the constant shifts in interlibrary loan policies made by many institutions, I feel that the directory is already out-dated, and that it is necessary to re-confirm charges, loan periods, etc. Sometimes misinformation can be more upsetting to a client than having to wait to hear answers on particular points. Therefore, I support fully Miss Godfrey's hope that the Canadian Library Association will solicit and publish reports of policy changes between editions. I suggest that a detachable page, in questionnaire form, be included in the directory, and that reports of changes be published frequently — as often as every six months if necessary.

In conclusion, although I believe such a directory will serve as an excellent aid, it must be maintained currently to justify the expense and effort expended in its production, and the price paid for its purchase.

The Moravian Missions to the Eskimos of Labrador: a Checklist of Manuscripts and Printed Material from 1715 to 1967, supplemented by other works on the Eskimo of Canada, by Lawrence Lande. Montreal: McGill University, 1973. (Lawrence Lande Foundation for Canadian Historical Research, No. 7) 32p. $12.50 (source given below)

This bibliography is one of a series of annotated check-lists on special topics being compiled by Dr. Lande in preparation for his third Bibliography of Canadiana. The 132 items included in the list are wide ranging in scope, from a letter written in 1715 by an early French Canadian landholder in Labrador to a history of the Moravian Church published in 1967. Besides manuscript correspondence and memoranda, the collection contains printed bibles, commentaries, tracts, periodicals and maps, including material ranging from Eskimo instruction cards in arithmetic to copies of Eskimo newspapers printed in Nain. The items are in English, German, French and Eskimo. Most of the material was collected from the Archives the missionaries maintained at their station of Hopedale on the Labrador Coast.

The form of each bibliographical entry is as follows: the title and author is given in capitals, with further information, commencing with the imprint, in lower-case letters. Pagination is full and information on the binding is included. Where the item is listed in one or more of the standard bibliographies dealing with Labrador or the Eskimo, these references are cited as the final item of the bibliographical entry. Notes on the authorship, printing or provenance of entries enhance the usefulness of the check-list. In cases where the item comes from the Hopedale Archives, Dr. Lande gives the original listing in the Hoffenthal (Hopedale) Catalog. This manuscript catalog, compiled by the methodical missionaries in 1879, runs to 18 folio pages, listing 478 items arranged in five sections identified by colour.
