The whole of this issue is devoted to an important addition to the York volumes of Records of Early English Drama: Elza C. Tiner (Lynchburg College) has prepared for York an index of travelling companies according to patrons. Similar indexes have been published with REED collections since 1984’s Norwich, 1540–1642.

ELZA C. TINER

Patrons and Travelling Companies in York

The following section provides an index of travelling companies keyed to the REED York collection. Companies are listed alphabetically by patron, according to the principal title under which their playing companies and entertainers appear; cross-references from other titles or variant spellings are given if they are also so named in the Records. If a patron’s company appears under a title other than the usual or principal one, this other title is in parentheses next to the designation of the company. Clergy are listed by title followed by the diocese in parentheses: for example ‘Bishop (Durham).’ All other companies appear under their patron’s principal landed title. Companies named according to a patron’s civil appointment are indexed under the name of that post as it appears in the Records: for example, ‘Lord Admiral’ and ‘Lord Chancellor.’

The biographical information supplied here has come entirely from printed sources, the chief of which are the following: S.T. Bindoff (ed), The History of Parliament: The House of Commons 1509–1558, 3 vols (London, 1982); Acts of the Privy Council; Calendar of Close Rolls; Calendar of Patent Rolls (edited through 1576); Calendar of State Papers; George Edward Cokayne, The Complete Peerage...; The Dictionary of National Biography; James E. Doyle, The Official Baronage of England Showing the Normally each patron entry is divided into four sections. The first lists relevant personal data and titles of nobility with dates. Succession numbers are given only for the most important titles held by a person, as well as for those titles by which he or she is named in the Records. These numbers follow the absolute sequence given in The Complete Peerage rather than the relative ones that begin afresh with each new creation. Knighthood dates are included only for minor gentry not possessing higher titles.

The second section lists appointments showing local connections and includes those known to have been used within titles of playing companies. Purely expeditionary military titles have been largely omitted, along with most minor Scottish and Irish landed titles. For patrons holding peerage titles, minor civil commissions not given in The Complete Peerage and The Dictionary of National Biography have been omitted, except for those in Yorkshire and its surrounding counties, i.e., Cheshire, Cumberland, Derbyshire, Durham, Lancashire, Lincolnshire, Northumberland, Nottinghamshire, and Westmorland. Readers desiring further information on these patrons in other regions are advised to consult the Calendar of Patent Rolls and Letters and Papers of Henry VIII (as well as other reed collections in which their biographies appear). Where possible, the date of an appointment is taken from the date of a document assigning that position. If the appointment is stated in the document to be 'for life,' then these words follow the title of that post. If the original document has not been edited and a secondary source is used that states 'until death,' then this form appears. Otherwise dates of appointment and termination are given, if available. If the length of time an office is held is not known, then only the date of appointment is given. Alternatively, if the only evidence comes from a source dated some time during the period of tenure, then the word 'by' and a date appears. If only the date of termination is known, 'until' is used. Finally, if no dates at all are available, 'nd' follows the title of the appointment. A '?' following a date indicates uncertainty regarding the dating of a document in the sources or differentiation in the case of several patrons by the same name who might have held the post. For all minor commissions, such as commissions of jail delivery, commissions post mortem, and commissions of the peace (JP), years only are given. If the dates of these commissions cover several years in sequence, then the earliest and latest years of the sequence are separated by a dash.

The third section, for which information is often incomplete or unavailable, contains the names and locations of the patron's principal seats and lists counties where he or she held lands. Extensive property lists have been condensed and limited to the counties surrounding Yorkshire.

The fourth section is an annotated index by company types and performances dates in the York Records. Latin terms used to name company types are translated according to REED guidelines developed by Abigail Ann Young. Sometimes, when these terms have been abbreviated ambiguously and are unmodified in the original documents, they cannot be expanded with certainty to singular or plural. For example, 'ministrall' standing alone could be expanded either to 'ministrally' or 'ministrallys'. In earlier REED practice, used in the York collection, ambiguous abbreviations were usually treated as plural; thus the dative 'ministrally' is expanded to 'ministrallys'. In current practice, used in REED collections from Devon on, such terms are left unexpanded and the mark of abbreviation in the manuscript is represented by an apostrophe in the edition. In the translation, the ending 'Is' (as in 'ministrel/s') is used to indicate both possible expansions of the Latin original.

The ending 'Is' is also used when two or more patrons are listed for one company type. In this situation, it is not clear how many performers belong to each patron. For example, in the entry 'ij ministrallys domini sothffolk' Ricardi Tunstall & Thome herryngton' (York, p 70), two minstrels are listed for three patrons. The Latin could be interpreted to mean either that two minstrels belong to each patron, or that two minstrels are shared among all three patrons. Thus, in this index, 'ministrel/s' is listed under all three patrons: the duke of Suffolk, Richard Tunstall, and Thomas Harington.

Dates of payments to travelling companies are usually recorded in the City Chamberlains' Books, itemized annual accounts of income and expenses. Until 1490, the city chamberlains' accounts began and ended on 3 February, the Feast of St Blaise, when both mayor and chamberlains were elected. After that date, the fiscal year was shifted to the feast of St Maurus, 15 January, the new electoral date. Total yearly disbursements to travelling companies are recorded in the City Chamberlains' Rolls, the annual audit report. Other documents containing evidence of travelling companies are the House Books (the minutes of the city council), which begin the year on Lady Day, 25 March. The York Minster Chamberlains' Rolls and the Chamberlains' Accounts known as St Peter's Part (the York Minster petty cash account from which travelling companies were paid) also contain a few references to travelling companies. The Rolls were drawn up twice a year, at Martinmas, 11 November, and at Pentecost, the seventh Sunday after Easter.

Dates in this index reflect the differences between the Old and New style calendars. During the period covered by REED collections, even though 1 January was recognised as New Year's Day, the Old Style calendar reckoned from Lady Day, 25 March. Thus, dates in the Old Style dating would be raised one year in the modern system. To clarify differences between Old and New Style dating, between 1 January and 24 March slashes have been used: the year before the slash is the Old Style date; the year after the slash follows the modern calendar. Thus, the decision to grant the earl of Pembroke’s players permission to perform in the Common Hall dated 18 January 1599 in the original House Book (modernized in the York collection to 18 January 1600) is here represented as 1599/1600.

However, the accounting year of the document also affects these adjustments. The year of a payment made between 1 January and 3 February in the York city chamberlains’ accounts before 1490 may be adjusted up or down one, depending on whether it was made at the beginning or end of the fiscal year. Thus, with reference to the York volume, the year 1448 is listed as 1448/9 if the payment occurs between 1 January and 3 February at the end of the account and as 1447/8 if the payment occurs between these dates at the beginning of the account. The year of a 1448 payment falling between 3 February and 24 March in the city chamberlains’ accounts would, of course, be adjusted to 1447/8. After 1490, the same adjustments are made for the period 1 to 15 January in the city chamberlains’ accounts.

Following the date in the fourth section of this index are the page numbers in parentheses where the citations occur. Note that not every citation refers to an actual visit by a company to the city. Because these lists of citations are intended to serve as an index to the York collection, every mention of a company is included, whether or not the company actually performed in that year. The City Chamberlains’ Books provide the most detailed lists of disbursements made to individual companies. At the end of the year, in preparation for the annual audit, the Chamberlains’ Rolls would list the total expenditure, with a summary description like this one dated 1449: ‘Et haraldis nuncijs & Ministralie Regis Ducum Baronum militum & aliarum personarum venerabilium hoc anno vj li iij s v d.’ Thus, in some years for which both the Chamberlains’ Books and Rolls are extant, the king’s company will be listed more than once. As well, we do not know what companies actually visited the city during the years for which the Chamberlains’ Books and Rolls are missing or illegible.

The reader may also wish to refer to the Index of the York records for additional references to some of the patrons and to various unnamed companies and their players. When it has been possible to identify a patron, the reference has been included here; otherwise references to unidentified patrons (e.g., ‘ij Ministralis Comitis de (...)’ p 70) are in the Index.

NOTES

1 Alexandra F. Johnston and Margaret Rogerson (eds), York, 2 vols, Records of Early English Drama (Toronto, 1979). This index is part of an ongoing REED project to compile a database and publish a master collection of patrons' biographies and company itineraries directed by Sally-Beth MacLean, REED Executive Editor. I thank Alexandra Johnston and Margaret Rogerson for their help with the York documents; Sally-Beth MacLean for her guidance in the research and editing of the patrons' biographies; Abigail Ann Young for her check of the transcriptions and Latin translations; and Miriam Skey, and William Rowcliffe for their work at the final stages of copy-editing and typesetting. I would also like to thank Lizabeth Henderson, Carol Pollock and Linda Harwell, Reference Librarians at Lynchburg College, for their assistance in obtaining materials on interlibrary loan; and the New York Public Library for reserve shelves in the Wertheim Study. Research on the York patrons has been funded by the American Association of University Professors, New York Institute of Technology Chapter; the Mednick Memorial Fellowship, Virginia Foundation for Independent Colleges; and the Lynchburg College Faculty Research and Development Committee.

2 The City Chamberlains' Books, many of which can only be read under ultra-violet light, have not all survived. For a list of the ones extant, see Johnston and Rogerson, York, 1, xxiv.

3 See R. B. Dobson (ed), York City Chamberlains' Account Rolls 1396–1500, Surtees Society, 192 (1980), xxiii–xxv, where Dobson also explains the civic accounting procedures linking the Chamberlains' Account Books and the Chamberlains Account Rolls. Like the Chamberlains' Books, the Rolls are badly damaged and fragmented. A list of those surviving is in York, 1, xxiii.

4 Document descriptions are provided in York 1: xvii–xix, xx–xxiv and xxxv–xxxvii. Although the York collection follows modern dating, the split year system in this patrons' list is consistent with present REED editorial policy. For the dating system used in the York edition, see 1, xlii–xlv.
