Contributors' Notes/Notes Biographiques
(in alphabetical order/dans l’ordre alphabétique)

Annmarie Adams (annmarie.adams@mcgill.ca) is William C. Macdonald Professor at the School of Architecture, McGill University, Montreal. She is the author of Architecture in the Family Way: Doctors, Houses, and Women, 1870-1900 (McGill-Queens University Press, 1996), Medicine by Design: The Architect and the Modern Hospital, 1893-1943 (University of Minnesota Press, 2008) and co-author of Designing Women: Gender and the Architectural Profession (University of Toronto Press, 2000).

Lorena M. Gajardo (lorena.gajardo@utoronto.ca) is editor of Resources for Feminist Research Journal/Revue de documentation sur la recherche féministe and Program Coordinator of the Centre for Women’s Studies in Education, CWSE, OISE, University of Toronto. Her scholarship focuses on issues of Latinx identity, knowledge production and decolonial practices, Latinx activism, and Latina and Chicana feminisms. She has taught courses on Latina/o identity in Canada and Latina/Latin American feminisms and has worked with Latin American scholarly organizations and with community organizations like MUJER. She is also a founding member of the Latina/o Feminisms Course project.

Jennifer L. Johnson (jjjohnson@laurentian.ca) is an Associate Professor and the Chair of the Department of Women’s, Gender, and Sexuality Studies at Thorneloe University federated with Laurentian University, Ontario. Her research and publications focus on gender, race and social reproduction in global economies, feminist geographies of work and feminist and anti-racist pedagogies.

Jan Kainer (jkainer@yorku.ca) is Associate Professor in the School of Gender, Sexuality and Women’s Studies at York University. She teaches courses on women, gender and work in the Gender and Women’s Studies undergraduate programme and in the graduate programme in Gender, Feminist and Women’s Studies. She has published on equity initiatives in the Canadian labour movement including: pay equity, youth placements and union renewal, and on nurses’ right to refuse work in professional nursing practice. She is currently researching the experience of women in youth farm internships in Canada.

Silvia Tecun León (silvimarjja@yahoo.com) is a Maya Quiche lawyer and activist from Chichicastenango, Guatemala. Silvia works with Movimiento de Mujeres Indígenas Tz’úu nunch’uj, a strong indigenous women’s rights organization in Guatemala on issues political mobilization, the rights of indigenous women, and the legal situation of women working to protect their territories against mining. Working in particular with women and girls that are victims-survivors of sexual violence, Silvia takes cases through the justice system as well as offering support for their material needs.

Susanne Luhmann (luhmann@ualberta.ca) is an Associate Professor and the Chair of the Department of Women’s and Gender Studies at the University of Alberta. Her research and publications centre on the ongoing formation of academic Women’s and Gender Studies; German cultural memory; and feminist/queer pedagogies.

Jamie Magnusson (jamielynn.magnusson@utoronto.ca) is Associate Professor in the Department of Leadership, Higher and Adult Education, OISE, University of Toronto. Her activism and scholarship on ‘precarity and dispossession’ examine militarized financialization in terms of urban development and social justice themes, with particular attention to racialized and indigenous women, youth, and lgbtq communities. She has recently written and presented on the political economy of domestic sex trafficking, surveillance capitalism, and the financialization of living systems. Her community activism includes working with women and youth who have been exploited in the sex industry, and working with lgbtq activists.

Philinda Masters (p.masters@utoronto.ca) is a long time feminist editor and activist. In the early 70s she worked at The Women’s Place as co-coordinator, helped found the Toronto Rape Crisis Centre (and did the first shift there) and the Toronto Women’s Credit Union. She was one of the founders of Broadside, a groundbreaking Canadian feminist newspaper that published for 10 years between 1979 and 1989, thanks to the mostly volunteer efforts of a group of political activists. After leaving Broadside she went to the Ontario Institute for Studies in Education (OISE) where she was editor of the peer-reviewed scholarly journal Resources for Feminist Research/Documentation sur la recherche féministe (RFR/DRF), and president of the union local representing researchers, and chair of the equity and diversity committee of OISE’s faculty council. She continues to edit books and theses and is involved with RFR/DRF as consulting editor.

Jacinthe Michaud (jmichaud@yorku.ca) is Associate Professor and Chair of the School of Gender, Sexuality and Women’s Studies, York University. Her scholarship focuses on the relationship between feminism and the left in Québec and Italy; leftist and feminist periodicals during the 70s and 80s in Québec; feminist theories; and, the intersection of culture and social sciences.
R. Magaly San Martin (ruth.sanmartin@sheridanc.on.ca) is professor at Sheridan College in the School of Community Studies. She is an activist scholar presently finishing her doctoral studies at OISE, University of Toronto. Her research interests include feminist epistemology, postcolonial theory, and Latinx Studies. She has published research related to Latinx immigrant and refugee processes, Latinx sex work in Toronto, and critical analysis on feminist agencies. She has been a long-time community activist and organizer working in the solidarity movement, anti-racism organizations like LACAR, indigenous solidarity, and anti-poverty campaigns. She has also worked in Latinx feminist organizations like the Latin American Women’s Collective and as founding member of MUJER. She is also a founding member of the Latina/o Feminisms Course project.

Lisa Sloniouwski (lisasl@yorku.ca) Associate Librarian at York University Libraries. Since 2008 Lisa has been the English Language Liaison Librarian at York University Library. In this role she builds literary collections and offers research instruction and assistance to faculty and students in English Language and Literature, and in the Creative Writing Program. She is the chair of York Libraries’ Special Collections Working Group. Lisa’s research interests surround feminist archives and special collections, literary archives and special collections, information literacy for citizenship and advocacy for librarians. She also thinks about the role of libraries in knowledge production. In 2009 Lisa co-founded the Feminist Pornography Archive and Research Project with Dr. Bobby Noble, Associate Professor of Sexuality and Gender Studies in the School of Women’s Studies. This project was awarded a three-year Social Science and Humanities Research Council standard research grant in 2010. In 2013 she entered the Phd program in Social and Political Thought at York University and is a member of the Women and Gender Studies et Recherches Féministes, the Sexuality Studies Association, the Ontario Library Association, and the Progressive Librarians Guild (Toronto Chapter).

Vannina Sztainbok (vannina.sztainbok@utoronto.ca) Assistant Professor in the Department of Social Justice Education. Her research brings an anti-racist feminist lens to the study of Latin American urban spaces. She is particularly interested in thinking about how “extra-discursive” or unconscious aspects of racial subjectivity connect to experiences of place, violence, and displacement, as well as the politics of resistance. She draws on multiple theoretical areas including anti-racist feminist theory, cultural geography, feminist post-structuralism, postcolonial studies, and psychoanalysis. Her research areas include anti-racist feminism, intersectionality, Latin American race and gender studies, race and space, Afro-Latin American studies.

Don Toromanoff (don.toromanoff@mail.mcgill.ca) is a recent graduate from the School of Architecture at McGill University, Montreal. He completed his M.Arch thesis on an urban airport in downtown Montreal in 2013, and was awarded an A.F. Dunlop Travelling Scholarship to study city airports in Berlin, London and Reykjavik.
Maria Wendt (Maria.Wendt@statsvet.su.se) is Associate Professor and employed as Senior Lecturer, at the Department of Political Science, Stockholm University. Her dissertation investigated the politics of men’s violence against women in Sweden. Mainly, her research interest has focused on politics, gender and national identities as well as on issues of feminist pedagogy. Currently she is involved in a comparative research project that investigates how European nations deal with the deaths of soldiers in the Afghanistan war.