The Turtle Island Journal of Indigenous Health (TIJIH) is a graduate student-run journal with aims to foster respectful collaboration and co-creation of knowledge between Indigenous and western knowledges where Elders govern the authenticity, accuracy, and sanctity of community-based knowledge.

The TIJIH offers a forum for dialogue and knowledge translation between academia, Indigenous communities and broader society in a way that honours Indigenous ways of knowing and being.

TIJIH is now accepting submissions for the first issue. Topics of interest include, but not limited to:

- Research ethics
- Data sovereignty
- Environmental health
- Issues connected to Land

Submission Details

TIJIH accepts a diverse range of submissions including, but not limited to, primary research, literature reviews, and arts-based research. Your submission to should contain:

- Cover letter explaining submission's significance, relevant community relationships and significance to the collaborating Indigenous community(ies)
- Indigenous authorship or letter(s) of community approval and support
- Your submission (e.g. manuscript, image)

Please refer to the "General Author Guidelines" on the TIJIH website for information on eligibility and formatting.

IMPORTANT DATES

Submissions must be received within one month of opening date.

1st call: March 5th, 2020 - April 5th, 2020 11:59 pm

2nd call: August 2020 - September 2020

For more information, please visit: https://tinyurl.com/uvgej96 or email us at tijih.dlsph@utoronto.ca